

The Intelligencer

May 10, 2007

They'll create a salad

Three chefs to compete

Philadelphia Magazine and Saladworks are hosting the first Saladworks Celebrity Chef Competition from noon to 2 p.m. May 17 at The Rotunda at the Shops at Liberty Place at 16th and Chestnut streets in Philadelphia.

Three area chefs — representing Amada, City Tavern, and Capital Grille — will be competing to create Saladworks next seasonal salad. The winning salad will be featured at Saladworks restaurants for 12 weeks and will be seen by a million of its customers.

The free event will be emceed by Hope Cohen, a nationally recognized chef and host of CN8's "The Fretz Kitchen."